This article on the first page relating to the meeting at Library Hall to receive the election returns, was handed us too late for last week's issue, but as it is a graphic account of a characteristic meeting, we think it should be published.

THE REV. DR. S. D. BURCHARD with his fanatical and bigoted allusions to "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion," was a potent factor in the New York election. Such a speech as that, however thoughtless and false, cannot be easily forgotten, and we earnestly wish that the fool killer could have claimed Dr. Burchard for his own early in this campaign.

We fail to see how the prohibitionists can have any claim upon Republicans from this day forward. Their ability to injure the country and the cause of Temperance is vastly out of proportion to their numbers or importance, and they have worked this injury to its widest limits for the benefit of their most bitter foe. Time, we suppose, will bring its revenge, but with our present feelings we should be glad to see the St. John crowd retired to obscurity.

The communication from the executive committee of the Law and Order League, published on another page of this issue, is gratifying, as it shows that the town is beginning to reap the fruits of the work already done. It will be noticed that though the sentences were, except in one case, fines, they were accompanied by an admonition that imprisonment would follow a repetition of the offense.

The committee complains, and as we know with cause, that it has not received the support of the community as it should.

There should be no mistake as to the objects of the League. It is not a temperance society; it is not a St. John Club; it has nothing to do with either the temperance or prohibition cause. It is simply an organization of men formed for police purposes. Its sole object is to enforce existing laws against vice and immorality. Such being its object, it should be supported generously, and it is hoped that the success already achieved will encourage all good citizens to contribute to that support.

A Resurrection.

The day of resurrection has dawned for the Democratic party, and they come forth from the grave to which treason and folly consigned them nearly a quarter of a century ago, to assume again the responsibility of government, and to enter upon a term of probation. The grave clothes are still about them, for the slaveholder and the sons of the slaveholder still exist, and by means of a solid South will again control the destiny of the party which went to its ignominious death under their leadership; but the musty tomb from which they have arisen will remain open and its gaping portals will serve to warn them of a fate which they will be anxious to escape.

Time has worked swiftly in these years since 1860, and much that was then open to debate has now been settled by hard experience, and been woven into the history of the country. With slavery abolished, and the negro elevated to the plane of citizenship, the problem before the new administration will be how to govern a free people, instead of how to maintain a race in bondage. If the Democracy would hold together their own increasing forces and desire to bind more closely to themselves the disaffected of every sort—by whose efforts alone they have been recalled to life and power—the issues of the war must be accepted as settled facts, and the results achieved by the Republican party must be allowed to stand for the benefit of all mankind.

It will not be wise for them to attempt to undo the legislation of the reconstruction period, or to show too much eagerness to bestow honors upon the men whom Gen. Grant reduced to submission at Appomattox. The time has not arrived for the South to talk of pensions for Confederate soldiers and of payment for their slaves. Northern men, even Northern Democrats, will not rejoice to see Union veterans turned out of the Departments at Washington to make places for men whose only feeling towards that city was the desire to burn it. The Democratic party will do well to remember that 1884 is not 1860, and that they are to rule over an enlightened country, whose destiny has widened, and whose permanency has been secured while they slumbered in the grave. They should also remember that they owe their present opportunity to the fact that too many Republicans have permitted themselves to forget what the Democracy now is, and always has been, and have blindly persuaded themselves that it would rise a quiescent spirit instead of an emancipated ghost.

The Tariff.

The election of Grover Cleveland has demonstrated that the tariff is all issue between the parties is not sufficiently vital to dismember the Democracy or to break the Solid South, or even to hold within Republican ranks such of its members as have grown weary in well doing, and for any cause have shaken off their allegiance to its old established principles.

What do the Independents care for the tariff—as between it and James G. Blaine they have chosen free trade? What do the prohibitionists care for the tariff—as between it and an opportunity to exhibit their fanaticism and bigotry? Free trade had no terrors for them.

Talking about the evil effects of free trade has had but little influence upon this election, and its real effects will be only understood when they are experienced by the people. For this reason, as Republicans, we could wish that a Republican Senate might place no obstacles in the way of the Democratic House enacting just such a tariff as they choose to experiment with. If no evil results follow a reduction of duties to a revenue basis, then the tariff has ceased to be an issue; but if, as we firmly believe, such a reduction should bring with it a corresponding reduction of wages for labor and a prostration of industry accompanied by poverty and want, then, too, the question will be settled for a period, and the Republican party will be recognized as the true friend both of labor and capital, and will be re-established in the confidence of the people.

THE NARROW ESCAPE

Of a Massachusetts Engineer timely Warning of Mr. John Spencer, Baggage-master of U. & A. R. R. is a long time in which to suffer, yet Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., had led a miserable life for that period through the presence of a stone in his bladder. That he sought in all directions for a cure is an almost superfluous statement. He did obtain temporary relief, but nothing more. Last January he called on Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who said, after examination: "Mr. Lawler, you have a stone in the bladder. We will first try DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY before taking an operation." A few days later the following letter passed through the Rondout post-office:

Dear Dr. Kennedy:—The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now. PETER LAWLER.

Dr. Kennedy now has the stones at his office, and they are sufficiently formidable to justify the claim that KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY is the leading specific for stone in the bladder. In his letter Mr. Lawler mentions that FAVORITE REMEDY also cured him of rheumatism. The subject of this letter is a story of Old Berkshire Mills.

DALTON, Mass., April 2, 1884.

Mr. Peter Lawler has been a resident of this town for the past seven years, and in our employ for fifteen, and in all these years he has been a good and respected citizen of the town and community. He has had some chronic disease to our knowledge for most of the time, but now claims to be, and is, in apparent good health.

CHAS. O. BROWN, President.

DALTON, Mass., June 2, 1884.

Dr. Kennedy—Dear Friend:—Thinking you might like to hear again from an old patient, I am going to write you. It is now three and a half years since first I went to you. As I told you then I was troubled with Kidney Disease for about fifteen years, and had seven of the best doctors to be found, but I received only temporary relief until I visited you and commenced taking your "Favorite Remedy." I continue taking the Remedy according to your directions, and now consider myself a well man. Very truly yours, PETER LAWLER.

Our letter of April 2, 1884, holds good as far as Mr. Lawler's testimony is concerned regarding his own story.
